

THE MAIN QUEST · FIELD GUIDE

LEADERSHIP

From writer to leader - building teams, steering creative direction, and owning the voice across three brands. I learned to make the work, then learned to lead it.

THE ARC

From writer to leader

Four dark gray rectangular boxes arranged horizontally, each containing a large white number or word and a smaller blue text description below it.

| Value  | Description               |
|--------|---------------------------|
| 7+     | YEARS AT BACKCOUNTRY      |
| 3      | BRANDS OWNED              |
| Dozens | OF CHANNELS               |
| 1000s  | OF EMAILS, POSTS & ASSETS |

Today I build and mentor a team of copywriters, set the editorial direction, and make sure everything the brands say lands as authentic, helpful and unmistakably us - and I still write, right alongside them.

WHAT I OWN

Three brands. Every channel.

I manage, champion and preserve the tone & voice across three brands - and steer it through every channel we publish.

BIG PROJECT · FILM

Films the team ships

Under my editorial direction the team produces full-length ski films and documentaries - including award winners - seen by millions.

HOW I LEAD

A few things I believe

Make the work, then lead the work.

I earned it by doing it - and I never stopped making things.

Protect the voice.

One consistent, authentic tone across every brand and every channel.

Don't hoard the fun.

I still write scripts, emails and campaigns right alongside the team.

Steer, don't smother.

Give writers real ownership, then get out of the way of good ideas.

THE TAKEAWAY

I learned to make the work. Then I learned to lead the work. On the best days, I get to do both.
